In honor of the 250th anniversary of America's independence, this Directory cover commemorates Bergen County's important role in the founding of our nation and the Revolutionary War history that unfolded across its communities. The Revolution in New Jersey began on the cliffs along the Palisades, where General George Washington and the Continental Army launched their critical retreat across the Jerseys in 1776. During that campaign, both Continental and British forces moved through present-day Fort Lee, Englewood, Teaneck, New Milford, River Edge, Bergenfield, Leonia, Wallington, Lodi, Hasbrouck Heights, and Hackensack, forever linking Bergen County to the fight for American independence. Bergen County was also the site of the Battle of Fort Lee, the 1778 Baylor Massacre in River Vale, and the 1781 march of Continental and French troops toward Yorktown along what is now Route 202 in Oakland and Mahwah.

Established in 1683 as one of New Jersey's four original counties, Bergen County has remained connected to the American story for more than three centuries. This directory cover highlights Revolutionary War landmarks and historic sites throughout the County, while the back cover features a collection of historic postcards showcasing Bergen County's evolution through the past 250 years of American history. Today, Bergen County is New Jersey's most populous county and a diverse, dynamic center of economic activity, innovation, and culture. Its blend of historic legacy and continued progress continues to shape the region and strengthen New Jersey.

BERGEN COUNTY

- Mission Statement -

The County of Bergen is committed to providing vital programs and resources to all County residents, taking care of our most vulnerable, embracing our diversity - inclusive of all unique abilities - and protecting our rich heritage. In partnership with our communities and citizens, the County of Bergen is committed to delivering fiscally responsible services in a personal and innovative manner.

JAMES J. TEDESCO III

BERGEN COUNTY EXECUTIVE

James J. Tedesco III is serving his third term as Bergen County Executive—only the second person in county history to be elected to the office three times. Since taking office in 2015, he has centered his administration on improving quality of life for residents, expanding essential services, and modernizing County government. Under his leadership, Bergen County has made record investments in public safety, infrastructure, parks and recreation, shared services, education, and community support programs.

One of the earliest and most transformative initiatives Tedesco took was the revitalization of Bergen New Bridge Medical Center, the fourth-largest public hospital in the United States.

During his tenure, the medical center has undergone a comprehensive renaissance—expanding services, restoring morale, and establishing itself as a pillar of affordable healthcare in the region.

County Executive Tedesco has also prioritized support for military veterans and their families. Under his leadership, the County's Division of Veterans Services has expanded, and Bergen County became one of the first communities in the nation to reach a functional zero for veteran homelessness.

Investments such as the state-of-the-art Law and Public Safety Institute—one of the most advanced emergency responder training facilities on the East Coast—and the creation of Bergen Emergency Medical Services (Bergen EMS), a countywide, no-cost ambulance service, have strengthened emergency response capabilities and enhanced resident safety. Under Tedesco's Administration, these public safety efforts have rightfully earned Bergen County the distinction of the Ninth Safest County in the Nation, according to a U.S. News & World Report study.*

A core priority of County Executive Tedesco's administration has been ensuring that County government is responsive to the needs of its communities and reflective of the people it serves. Bergen County is one of the most diverse counties in the nation, and Tedesco's administration has worked to make that diversity a defining strength. This commitment to community is reflected by the fact that, under Tedesco's leadership, the County established two new permanent offices within the Department of Human Services: the Office of Food Security and the Office of LGBTQ+ Services. His administration has also taken meaningful steps to support working families and strengthen the County workforce, including making Bergen County the first county in New Jersey to raise the minimum wage for full-time county employees.

A volunteer firefighter for 50 years, Tedesco's lifelong commitment to public service has shaped his approach to leadership. He previously served as Fire Chief in his hometown of Paramus, as well as Mayor of Paramus from 2003 to 2010.

Tedesco is the father of three adult children—Koren, James J. Tedesco IV, and Holly—the proud grandfather of six grandchildren, and “dog dad” to Bergen, the first official “county dog” in New Jersey.

EDUCATION IN BERGEN COUNTY

Bergen County public schools rank among the best in the nation. The County of Bergen supports two countywide school districts—the Bergen County Technical School District and the Bergen County Special Services School District.

Founded in 1942, the Bergen County Technical School District's secondary programs include Applied Technology High School, a full-time high school program with a concentration in engineering technology located on the campus of Bergen Community College; the Bergen County Academies, seven career technical high school programs that meld college prep classes with a career focus; Bergen County Technical High School/Paramus, a secondary program with a full-time option for special needs students and a shared-time option for students from local sending districts; and Bergen County Technical High School/Teterboro, a full-time program with nine technical concentrations. The district also offers full- and part-time technical instruction to over 18,000 secondary and adult students through the BCTS Adult and Continuing Education Division.

The Bergen County Special Services School District supports students with disabilities. Programs for students ranging from pre-elementary to secondary (ages 3-21) are structured around five separate divisions called continuums. These include the Auditory or Communication Skills Continuum, the Autistic Continuum, the Behavioral Skills Continuum, the Life Skills Continuum, and the Pre-School Continuum. Through these groupings, the district serves students with a variety of physical and cognitive disabilities. In addition, there are adult programs, professional support services for students, transition services, and other specialized programs that address the needs of the county and local school districts.
